

Eighth Year, No. 46

CALGARY, ALBERTA, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1915

Per Year $1.50

HOCKEY NOTES

Relief Corps Girls To Play Calgary Girls

There has been much speculation concerning a girls hockey match in Glendon for some time past and the CALG. now has it from President Mrs. Bartsch that a game is being arranged between the Relief Corps girls and the Calgary girls for February 12th, after which a dance will be given.

Further particulars will be available for our next issue.

Without doubt this will prove the most exciting game of hockey of the season and will attract a big crowd of spectators as the proceeds will all go towards the Relief Corps fund.

CALGARY TEAM HERE FRIDAY NIGHT

For several days past it has been advertised that the Calgary team was to play the Glendon team tomorrow night, Friday, February 5th, but word has been received that the Vics have been forced to play in Edmonton that night and therefore it has been arranged to have the well-known Calgary C. P. R. team come across with Glendon that night.

It is the general opinion that the game will be more interesting with the C.P.R. team as the two teams will be more evenly matched. This promise to be the game of the season and a big attendance of spectators is expected and great interest is manifested. Arrangements are under way to have a dance after the match.

BASSANO VS. GLEICHEN

An exciting exhibition game of hockey was played in Bassano on Wednesday evening of last week when Gleichen defeated Bassano by a score of 3-4. It appears that Bassano was very "sore" that Gleichen returned to Bassano's old tactics in hockey and baseball and played two men who also belonged to a Calgary team, and although one of them has been a Glencleite ever since he could promote the German team.

However, to humor the disgruntled, Referee W. McKie of Glencleite called all bets off and to quote the Bassano Mail, "As far as hockey was concerned it was probably the best game that has been played here this year as the two teams were evenly matched and it was nip and tuck all the way through with no sure bets. As for cleanliness the game was respectable, with scarcely a penalty being issued out."

K. of P. vs. GLEICHEN

Tuesday evening a very exciting game of hockey was played between the Glendon team and the Knights of Pythias. It appears that the Knights are gaining in membership right along as they have proved this time and last week by the long line of players who were a score of six to three and it kept the regulars busy to select a team that were not acquainted with the long line. In fact if the boys wearing F. C. and B. continue to roll up their membership it may be that they will soon be strong enough to come out to entertain them.

Severe Sentences For Cattle Stealing

The cattle stealing case south of Glendon which has been occupying considerable time in the courts was finally disposed of in Calgary on Friday last with the result that Dennis Donovan will spend seven years in prison and James McKee 23 months.

Reference to this case has appeared several times in the CALG. as well as a general outline of the case, and therefore, it is hardly necessary to report the particulars. However, it is to be hoped that this will serve as a warning to all cattle rustlers and it is stated that the rustlers and farmers have combined to put a stop to all such rustling no matter what the cost may be.

It is only just to state that the result of the case is largely due to the work of Sgt. Thos. Irvine of Glendon, who was assisted by Detective Sgt. Goodrich and Const. Waugh of Calgary.

Majorville

The gentle chinook this morning rendered a person that they are still in Sunny Alberta. The cold snap of the past few days are almost forgotten. Upon the whole we are enjoying a fairly favorable winter.

The few fortunate farmers who had held their wheat are busily engaged in hauling it and are getting very remunerative prices at present. There is a possibility that prices may go even higher as the farmers' wheat is mostly all bought up.

What would the farmer do with his hops if the American market was not open to him? I think it would be an impetus to raise more natural products if the same market was always open to receive them. Am I right or otherwise? I would like to know more about it.

David Oster has left for his home in the Old Country. His brother William, a former resident of this place, has been called to the front as a motorist. Mr. Oster has also two sisters at the front in France. They are grateful nurses and have been at the front in a hospital for some time.

Mr. Ernest Gower of Calgary is spending the winter with his friends, Messrs. Salomon and Oster.

Miss Nellie Ash of Three Rivers, Mich., is spending the winter with her brother, Mr. John L. Ash.

Mr. and Mrs. Bushell, who have spent most of the winter with their son Albert in Calgary, have returned to their farm.

Mr. H. E. Evans of Tacoma, Washington, is spending the holidays with his parents here and Mrs. J. F. Buchanan.

Several real estate deals have been put through here recently. We may know more about it in a future issue. This goes to show that some properties are changing hands.

Mrs. Synges of Lake Macdonald spent a few days last week visiting with Miss Larkie and other Glendon friends.

Relief Corps Entertainment and Dance Nets $208.25

The dance and presentation of the domestic comedy-drama in the Glendon Opera House last Friday evening proved successful financially and socially and resulted in the splendid sum of $208.25 being realized, which was duly placed in the treasury of the Glendon Relief Corps for those who benefit the attraction was gotten up by a committee of citizens and the promoters of the Glendon Stampede, and to whom much credit is due. This amount includes the luncheon supplied by the Corps.

The entertainment was produced by "The Players," the resident stock company of the Grand Theatre in Calgary, and was entitled "The Talker," the story of which appeared in these columns last week and it would indeed be difficult to pick out the actors deserving of most credit, as each member of the company appeared peculiarly adopted for his or her part. The moral lesson shown in the play is one that should result in much good to all who saw it and there was just enough of the comic to make the play enjoyable.

Farmers Will Meet In City of Regina

Between 1,500 and 1,800 grain growers are expected to attend the annual convention of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' Association in Regina, February 9 to 12, inclusive. The accommodation of the city it is expected will be taxed to the utmost.

Committees have been appointed to deal with various phases of the details in connection with the convention, and the accommodation of the visitors, a list of the details which will require special attention. The Board of Trade are assisting in the city and every effort in the city will be made to give the visitors the best of service. The city will be glad to have the farmers here and will be glad to have the farmers here and will be glad to have the farmers here.

The program for the convention is one of the best ever prepared for any convention of the association. Practically all the leaders in agriculture in Western Canada are to be present, and many of them will address the convention.

Relief Corps Thanks Standard

At a recent meeting of the ladies of the Glendon Relief Corps a letter of thanks was given to the people of Standard for their donation of $23.75 to the Relief cause. It is very much appreciated and will help a great deal in the work of the Relief cause.

A vote of thanks was also extended to Mrs. Dan McGowan, of the Pacific Cold Storage North Branch, for her efforts in collecting this money.

Cows Break All Records

A Holstein Cow owned by the provincial government of British Columbia at the farm at Esquedale, has broken all former records in Canada for milk production and has established a new world's record for a period of 86 successive days. During that time this cow has produced 9,376 pounds of milk and 107 pounds of butter. She is named Zarilda Chisholm III, de Kol, is a pure bred Holstein and is four years old. Her record for seven days is 833.04 pounds and for one day 123.09 pounds of milk. Her record of milk production for the year will be taken.

The highest record ever on the farm is Madam Pouch Pauline, who for the year just closed, for 300 days to be exact, has produced 27,884 pounds of milk—Western Canada Week by Week.

BIG TEMPERANCE RALLY MEETING

A rally meeting of the temperance forces of Glendon constituency will be held in Strathmore on Friday evening, February 5th. This meeting will be addressed by the Rev. Dr. J. G. Shearer on behalf of the Temperance and Moral Reform Association. A conference will also be held on Saturday for organization purposes.

In view of the approaching vote to be taken on the question of provincial prohibition, Glendon should be represented at these meetings by a strong delegation.

The mule is stronger than the man. Though the mule is stronger than the man, the man manages the mule for his own purposes. He sits a bridle on him, and he pulls and rides on his back. His pit harness made of leather on the mule and by speaking to him and giving him plenty of food, he induces him to walk and pull a wagon while the man gets into the wagon and rides.

The mule does much hard work, but all the more gained by the mule's hard work the man appreciates as himself. The mule lives roughly, is fed in a trough and sleeps on the ground on a little straw. The man eats at a table and sleeps in a warm bed. The mule's food is animal to keep.

The farmer is stronger than the monopolist. Though the farmer is stronger than the monopolist, the monopolist manages him for his own purpose. He puts a bridle, called loyalty to party, in his mouth and saddles on his back and ride him where he will. He puts a harness made of prejudice on the farmer, and by making speeches to him, and giving him more stuff, induces him to walk and draw a monopolist cart carriage. The farmer does much hard work, but the money gained by the farmer's work the monopolist appropriates to himself.

I.O.O.F. Elect Officers For Present Term

Monday evening last the best attended meeting for several months past was held by Prairie Lodge No. 14, I.O.O.F., in the Larkia Hall, and a new set of officers duly nominated and elected for the present term. It would now appear that the Oldfellows have got off to a good start for this term and it is fully expected and hoped that this will be one of the best they have enjoyed.

The new officers elected are: E. A. Brown, N. G. F. Scott, Vice-G. P. MacLean, Secretary. J. Wright, Treasurer.

It was decided to have installation next Monday night. An effort is being made to have one of the grand officers present from Calgary. After the installation it was arranged to hold a social evening. All brothers are especially requested to be present.

The farmer has become poor and lives roughly on a mortgage farm, and eats plain food from delf and tin plates and sleeps on a straw bed. The farmer is very useful to the monopolist.

Moral: Those who do not use their brains for themselves must use their muscles for somebody else.

The business conducted in the past under the name of the "Alberta Farmer" in future will be known as Brown's Transfer, but will continue to be under the management of H. E. Brown, who is making it a success.

A number of the Glendon settlers boys enlisted at Calgary last day in town the past week among them being George Moss, Stanley Grievie, John Weddell, W. Jeffrey, Frank Duckworth and A. Wynter.

MISCELLANEOUS

Horses and Cattle lost and found, for sale and wanted: Seed grain for hay, and any other of a similar nature will get quick results by being published under this heading.

TEACHER WANTED—For the William N. D. No. 2170 for a term of eight months, commencing April 1st. State qualifications and salary wanted. Address C. R. Houghton, Secretary, Quesnaw, Ont.

FOUR SALE—Seed oats, 1,000 bushels and Preston wheat. Apply to J. M. Telford, Calgary.

Mrs. I. Parks, Maternity Nurse, is prepared to go to any home at any time. Residence with Mrs. W. F. Ferguson, Phone 100, Glendon.

MILCH COWS FOR SALE—An exceptionally fine lot of fresh cows. Phone 1410, or write, A. G. Edwards, Calgary.

ROOSTERS FOR SALE—A fine lot of young Plymouth Rock roosters at $1.00 each. Phone 1410, or write Mrs. A. G. Edwards, Calgary.

The Vulcan Iron Works

This is Headquarters for SKATE SHARPENING

While all our rangers cannot do to the front most of them are doing their share in other ways. As an instance, we might note Douglas Hardwick of Glendon, from whose ranch, no less than seven men have enlisted, namely: T. R. Jones, Jack Carriaburn, Kenneth Naylor, W. Jackson, Robert Ross, Tom Fox and Jack Anderson. And Mr. Hardwick has not allowed them to go without doing their part. His brother, Grier, of the 41st ranch, has also enlisted and is going from Macleod.

CHEAP HOGS

TALK ABOUT CHEAP HOGS BUT

Look at the Prices the Pacific Cold Storage Company are quoting on the finest Home Cured HAMS and BACON and pure Kettle rendered LARD

---

Hams 18c, Bacon 18c, Lard 15c per pound

---

We guarantee every article, if not satisfactory, in every respect, money will be cheerfully refunded

---

PIONEER COLD STORAGE

Pacific Cold Storage Co.

Her Vengeance

By Basil Tozer

Ward, Lock & Co., Limited
London, Melbourne and Toronto

(Continued)

Mr. Hetherington threw the boy half-a-crown and began to ascend the steps of his house. Then he paused and glanced back.

"Oh, Hugh," he said, looking at his nephew with a rather curious smile. "I shall see you at the office tomorrow about this £5,000 I have promised to advance you, and if it don't pull through you shall have Jones's job, you know. The salary will be £75 a week."

"Thank you so much, sir," said Hugh. "I'll be sure to call at your office tomorrow, but as for Jones's job, I am awfully obliged, but I doubt if any one will take it for less than £1."

Mr. Hetherington made no answer, but smiled again in the same curious way and went into the house. Della looked at Hugh and smiled.

"Papa is half-witted and half-addled," she said. "You had better be on the look out, though, for he does not like being scored off, and he may play you some nasty trick or another. Aren't you coming in?"

"Oh, I think not, thanks," said Hugh. "I have just been crossing the road towards them a young man, tall, slender, very fashionably dressed and exceedingly good-looking, though rather effeminate in appearance."

"Hullo, why here is Bonstead, I thought he was still in Paris."

"My dear Lord Ambrose," said Della, beaming on the new comer with her most charming smile, "is it really you?"

Lord Ambrose Bonstead bowed and shook hands, first with Della and then with Hugh, explaining that he had just that day returned from Paris. Della seemed so much interested in him and asked him to come in and speak to her father, an invitation which Lord Ambrose accepted with alacrity.

With a very short nod to Hugh, Della ran up the steps to the door a patient footman was still holding open. Lord Ambrose followed, enchanted with her kind reception to him, and Hugh turned quietly away.

"Della is a bit riled with me, if Uncle isn't," he said to himself; "or, perhaps, it was only that she was really pleased to see Bonstead. I wonder if he will propose again and if she will accept."

And Hugh made his way quietly to his own rooms, wondering what, if Lord Ambrose were to propose to her, he would do.

And deciding that he would never take a wife subject to such fits of maniacal rage, no matter how much money she brought with her.

The next morning he was at business early and greeted old Mr. Logan with the astonishing news that he had hopes of obtaining £5,000 out of his uncle, a sum which should tide them well over their difficulties.

After disposing of some necessary routine work he went out to call at Messrs. Hetherington's and on the way met Lord Ambrose Bonstead, looking as languid and effeminate as ever, and as fashionably and carefully attired as if for Rotten Row in the afternoon instead of for Lombard Street in the morning.

"Where did you wish to last night?" Lord Ambrose asked, stopping as he saw Hugh; "Miss Hetherington was furious when she found you had taken yourself off."

"Was she?" said Hugh uneasily, but hoping Lord Ambrose used the word "furious" in its colloquial sense and not to indicate any of Della's or his own literal fury. "I'm sorry, but I think I rather thought I had got my dismissal. Besides you seemed very interested in each other."

"I in her," sighed Lord Ambrose, "not she in me. It was my third proposal last night."

"And was successful?" asked Hugh sympathetically.

"She was almost vexed, I fear," sighed Lord Ambrose; "she called me the silliest blunderer out of Colney Hatch; do you think she meant it personally?"

"Oh, I'm sure she didn't," said Hugh gravely.

Lord Ambrose sighed with intense relief, but a moment later his face clouded again.

"I say, Tallentire, you are not, are you?" he began, vaguely enquiring with palpable anxiety, "you know my mind my asking, do you? But you are there pretty often and I've sometimes wondered—"

"Good gracious, not!" exclaimed Hugh, understanding that Lord Ambrose feared in him a possible rival. "I only tolerated at Kensington Palace Square as the poor relation it wouldn't be decent to snub too openly. Besides, I don't think Della and I have very much in common."

"Oh, I see," said Lord Ambrose, obviously a good deal relieved; "well, come and dine with me tonight at Texvion House, will you? It's an awful old place, but dad lets me have it rent free, so I hang out there."

Hugh declined the invitation at first, but Lord Ambrose pressed him so that having no good excuse handy he was almost forced to accept. Then with a nod the two young men parted and Hugh went on towards his uncle's office.

"He seems in earnest about Della," Hugh mused. "I wonder if it is her or her money he is after; for he will have jolly little himself, as the third son of a rather hard-up marquis. But it's a swell enough family, and Bonstead himself is by no means such a fool as he looks."

treble civility of manner that Hugh, as a poor and struggling man, was not much used to from so important a person as Mr. Ward. Hugh guessed privately that Mr. Ward, astonished at this advance of the £5,000, imagined him to be in high favor with his uncle, and perhaps even saw in him a future junior partner in the great firm of Hetherington's.

"You were at Kensington Palace Square last night, were you not, Mr. Tallentire?" Mr. Ward asked, and as Hugh nodded, he continued: "A most unlucky business and if the girl dies—"

"Good lord," exclaimed Hugh, startled, "what has Della been up to now?"

"Oh, I thought you knew, as you had been there," said Mr. Ward, somewhat disconcerted, "still, it is no secret, as the girl insisted on being taken to the hospital, declaring she was afraid to stop at Kensington Palace Square. It seems Miss Della had the misfortune to drop a lamp near her maid, and the foolish girl got herself burnt and absurdly charges Miss Della with throwing the lamp at her. It is one of those annoying things that people get such wrong ideas about, and Mr. Hetherington has been kept so busy he could not spare time to come down to business today."

"That girl," said Hugh with conviction, "will end up with manslaughter—I'll swear she is mad."

"Oh, no," protested Mr. Ward, shocked. "Just generous but no ideas about it. I would not have mentioned it, only I thought you were there at the time. By the way, Mr. Hetherington told me to ask you to call in to see Messrs. Ziebold today."

"Oh, all right," said Hugh, and left the office, much less happy in his mind than he had expected to be.

For what was he to call at Ziebold's for? He did not wish to see Ziebold. Was the meekness with which his uncle had submitted only apparent, and was he to expect that "nasty trick" Della had warned him her father would very likely attempt to play him?

Mr. Ziebold was not a usual characteristic of Mr. Hetherington's, but rather a kind of dull and yet impetuous obstinacy that would never permit him to accept defeat or to abandon any pursuit once engaged in. Still, he had seemed yesterday to give up rather easily his attempt to force the matter, and Hugh thought that perhaps he was now losing something of his old persistence that had so often in the past held him to one course, reckless of all consequences.

All the same a dull conviction weighed on Hugh that this invitation to visit Ziebold's boded him no good.

CHAPTER VI. The Flower-Girl

Before returning to his own office Hugh called in, therefore, at Ziebold Brothers, and had not been five minutes in the presence of the head of the firm before his worst fears were realized. Some engagements of his, which in the ordinary course he would not have to trouble about for nearly three months, had now passed into the hands of Messrs. Ziebold, who appeared disposed to insist on their being met at the very instant.

"This is most unusual," he began to say, "why do you insist on such a thing? It is impossible for me to do so."

"Well, you must be in a very awkward position, while you must be able to see yourself that it was never contemplated I should have this put to me as this date."

Mr. Ziebold shrugged his shoulders.

"I am afraid I can hold out no hope of our coming to any terms, other than immediate settlement," he said quietly.

"But this is not business," cried Hugh angrily, "this is simply deliberate malice."

"Not on our part," said Ziebold quietly, "we are acting for some one else."

"For whom?" asked Hugh, sharply, but he knew at once that all this was his uncle's doing.

Plainly Mr. Hetherington meant to be even with him. Probably the plan was to place him into bankruptcy, and then make him accept the post already offered him. It seemed his uncle meant both to gratify his revenge and to get a good, skilled, trustworthy clerk at a very cheap rate.

"Well, he shall fall in that part of his plan, anyhow," said Hugh to himself, and then repeated to himself, "Well, on whose behalf are you acting?"

"Why, the fact is I don't know," said Mr. Ziebold, "we got the papers and our instructions through a firm of solicitors who were instructed by another firm. It pays us, so we saw no reason to refuse a commission. We had refused the lawyers would simply have gone to some one else. But it is plain enough that some one has his knife into you, and I have been wondering what you have done to your uncle."

"My uncle? Mr. Hetherington?" said Hugh. "Why, we are on the best of terms."

Mr. Ziebold said nothing but it was plain he did not believe him. Hugh determined on a sudden impulse that if his uncle were attacking him like this, he would use his uncle's reputation for wealth as a defence.

"Of course, I cannot accept your statement that you are acting for other people," he said quietly. "For what you do, I must hold you responsible. You are putting me to a good deal of inconvenience for no reason and I shall make a point of hitting back."

"You can," said Mr. Ziebold. "If I can," said Hugh. "Of course. But I will show you something."

He took from his pocket the papers his uncle's manager had given him regarding the loan of £5,000 and showed them to Mr. Ziebold, who was plainly a good deal impressed.

"I certainly understood the lawyer who instructed us was acting for Mr. Hetherington," he said, "but I don't understand why he should be putting £5,000 into the business of a man he is trying to crush. But then why did he advance you that sum?" added Ziebold, looking doubtful again. "It is not like him."

"Oh, there are private reasons," said Hugh.

"Oh," exclaimed Ziebold as one suddenly receiving light, "I heard there was something between you and Miss Hetherington. Are you engaged, then?"

Hugh, taken absolutely aback at this idea, which had before never entered his mind, nodded sharply, hardly realizing what he was doing, except that somehow he was satisfying Ziebold that he was not a man it would be very wise to inflict a wanton injury on.

"I see now," said Ziebold. "Quite so," said Hugh. "Then in that case you are likely to be a partner in Hetherington's soon," said Ziebold almost with deference.

"Well, nothing has been said about that yet," returned Hugh.

"But who is it then who is trying to play you this trick?" asked Ziebold. "I don't know," answered Hugh, "but I may suspect—it is possible I may have rivals who would be glad to discredit me in my uncle's eyes."

"Then I will let the people who instructed us know at once that we cannot act in such a matter," declared Mr. Ziebold heatedly. "It is not clean business, it is hardly honorable. And when you are admitted to the firm, Mr. Tallentire."

"When I am my uncle's partner," said Hugh solemnly, "you may depend on my friendship."

(To Be Continued)

GERMANS DISLIKED GOSCHEN

Why Britain's Ambassador Was Unpopular at Berlin

Sir Edward Goschen, who was Great Britain's representative at Berlin at the outbreak of the big war, has never been popular in the German capital.

The fact of bearing a German name and of his being of German ancestry rendered his position somewhat difficult.

It will be recalled that Sir Edward married the daughter of the late Darius Clarke, of New York, who had immense interests in Argentina and the fact that Lady Goschen was not particularly happy at Berlin, and that she succumbed to the effects of her climate, did not contribute to render the environment there very congenial to her bereaved husband.

Not only the German official world but also the public was inclined to resent his refusal to sacrifice the English interests which he represented to those of Germany as a species of treason to the land of his family's origin and to the Teuton blood in his veins.

Matters which Germans would have considered perfectly natural when put forward by an ambassador so entirely English as Sir Frank Lascelles, who was so popular when accredited to the court of the Kaiser, excited irritation and even indignation when they came from Sir Edward Goschen. Indeed Sir Edward, who will be remembered as secretary of the British embassy at Washington over twenty years ago, under Lord Pauncefote, was at no time popular in Germany.

In spite of his German name, however, Sir Edward was born in England and educated, like his elder brother, at Rugby, and at Oriel College, Oxford. He is a grandson of Joachim Goschen, the most famous European publisher of his day, who, making his headquarters at Leipzig, was the earliest friend and publisher of the German poet Schiller, all of whose works were issued to the world through Goschen, until he was finally weaned away by the publisher of Berlin.

In spite of his German name, however, Sir Edward was born in England and educated, like his elder brother, at Rugby, and at Oriel College, Oxford. He is a grandson of Joachim Goschen, the most famous European publisher of his day, who, making his headquarters at Leipzig, was the earliest friend and publisher of the German poet Schiller, all of whose works were issued to the world through Goschen, until he was finally weaned away by the publisher of Berlin.

In spite of his German name, however, Sir Edward was born in England and educated, like his elder brother, at Rugby, and at Oriel College, Oxford. He is a grandson of Joachim Goschen, the most famous European publisher of his day, who, making his headquarters at Leipzig, was the earliest friend and publisher of the German poet Schiller, all of whose works were issued to the world through Goschen, until he was finally weaned away by the publisher of Berlin.

In spite of his German name, however, Sir Edward was born in England and educated, like his elder brother, at Rugby, and at Oriel College, Oxford. He is a grandson of Joachim Goschen, the most famous European publisher of his day, who, making his headquarters at Leipzig, was the earliest friend and publisher of the German poet Schiller, all of whose works were issued to the world through Goschen, until he was finally weaned away by the publisher of Berlin.

In spite of his German name, however, Sir Edward was born in England and educated, like his elder brother, at Rugby, and at Oriel College, Oxford. He is a grandson of Joachim Goschen, the most famous European publisher of his day, who, making his headquarters at Leipzig, was the earliest friend and publisher of the German poet Schiller, all of whose works were issued to the world through Goschen, until he was finally weaned away by the publisher of Berlin.

In spite of his German name, however, Sir Edward was born in England and educated, like his elder brother, at Rugby, and at Oriel College, Oxford. He is a grandson of Joachim Goschen, the most famous European publisher of his day, who, making his headquarters at Leipzig, was the earliest friend and publisher of the German poet Schiller, all of whose works were issued to the world through Goschen, until he was finally weaned away by the publisher of Berlin.

In spite of his German name, however, Sir Edward was born in England and educated, like his elder brother, at Rugby, and at Oriel College, Oxford. He is a grandson of Joachim Goschen, the most famous European publisher of his day, who, making his headquarters at Leipzig, was the earliest friend and publisher of the German poet Schiller, all of whose works were issued to the world through Goschen, until he was finally weaned away by the publisher of Berlin.

In spite of his German name, however, Sir Edward was born in England and educated, like his elder brother, at Rugby, and at Oriel College, Oxford. He is a grandson of Joachim Goschen, the most famous European publisher of his day, who, making his headquarters at Leipzig, was the earliest friend and publisher of the German poet Schiller, all of whose works were issued to the world through Goschen, until he was finally weaned away by the publisher of Berlin.

In spite of his German name, however, Sir Edward was born in England and educated, like his elder brother, at Rugby, and at Oriel College, Oxford. He is a grandson of Joachim Goschen, the most famous European publisher of his day, who, making his headquarters at Leipzig, was the earliest friend and publisher of the German poet Schiller, all of whose works were issued to the world through Goschen, until he was finally weaned away by the publisher of Berlin.

In spite of his German name, however, Sir Edward was born in England and educated, like his elder brother, at Rugby, and at Oriel College, Oxford. He is a grandson of Joachim Goschen, the most famous European publisher of his day, who, making his headquarters at Leipzig, was the earliest friend and publisher of the German poet Schiller, all of whose works were issued to the world through Goschen, until he was finally weaned away by the publisher of Berlin.

In spite of his German name, however, Sir Edward was born in England and educated, like his elder brother, at Rugby, and at Oriel College, Oxford. He is a grandson of Joachim Goschen, the most famous European publisher of his day, who, making his headquarters at Leipzig, was the earliest friend and publisher of the German poet Schiller, all of whose works were issued to the world through Goschen, until he was finally weaned away by the publisher of Berlin.

In spite of his German name, however, Sir Edward was born in England and educated, like his elder brother, at Rugby, and at Oriel College, Oxford. He is a grandson of Joachim Goschen, the most famous European publisher of his day, who, making his headquarters at Leipzig, was the earliest friend and publisher of the German poet Schiller, all of whose works were issued to the world through Goschen, until he was finally weaned away by the publisher of Berlin.

In spite of his German name, however, Sir Edward was born in England and educated, like his elder brother, at Rugby, and at Oriel College, Oxford. He is a grandson of Joachim Goschen, the most famous European publisher of his day, who, making his headquarters at Leipzig, was the earliest friend and publisher of the German poet Schiller, all of whose works were issued to the world through Goschen, until he was finally weaned away by the publisher of Berlin.

In spite of his German name, however, Sir Edward was born in England and educated, like his elder brother, at Rugby, and at Oriel College, Oxford. He is a grandson of Joachim Goschen, the most famous European publisher of his day, who, making his headquarters at Leipzig, was the earliest friend and publisher of the German poet Schiller, all of whose works were issued to the world through Goschen, until he was finally weaned away by the publisher of Berlin.

In spite of his German name, however, Sir Edward was born in England and educated, like his elder brother, at Rugby, and at Oriel College, Oxford. He is a grandson of Joachim Goschen, the most famous European publisher of his day, who, making his headquarters at Leipzig, was the earliest friend and publisher of the German poet Schiller, all of whose works were issued to the world through Goschen, until he was finally weaned away by the publisher of Berlin.

In spite of his German name, however, Sir Edward was born in England and educated, like his elder brother, at Rugby, and at Oriel College, Oxford. He is a grandson of Joachim Goschen, the most famous European publisher of his day, who, making his headquarters at Leipzig, was the earliest friend and publisher of the German poet Schiller, all of whose works were issued to the world through Goschen, until he was finally weaned away by the publisher of Berlin.

In spite of his German name, however, Sir Edward was born in England and educated, like his elder brother, at Rugby, and at Oriel College, Oxford. He is a grandson of Joachim Goschen, the most famous European publisher of his day, who, making his headquarters at Leipzig, was the earliest friend and publisher of the German poet Schiller, all of whose works were issued to the world through Goschen, until he was finally weaned away by the publisher of Berlin.

In spite of his German name, however, Sir Edward was born in England and educated, like his elder brother, at Rugby, and at Oriel College, Oxford. He is a grandson of Joachim Goschen, the most famous European publisher of his day, who, making his headquarters at Leipzig, was the earliest friend and publisher of the German poet Schiller, all of whose works were issued to the world through Goschen, until he was finally weaned away by the publisher of Berlin.

In spite of his German name, however, Sir Edward was born in England and educated, like his elder brother, at Rugby, and at Oriel College, Oxford. He is a grandson of Joachim Goschen, the most famous European publisher of his day, who, making his headquarters at Leipzig, was the earliest friend and publisher of the German poet Schiller, all of whose works were issued to the world through Goschen, until he was finally weaned away by the publisher of Berlin.

In spite of his German name, however, Sir Edward was born in England and educated, like his elder brother, at Rugby, and at Oriel College, Oxford. He is a grandson of Joachim Goschen, the most famous European publisher of his day, who, making his headquarters at Leipzig, was the earliest friend and publisher of the German poet Schiller, all of whose works were issued to the world through Goschen, until he was finally weaned away by the publisher of Berlin.

In spite of his German name, however, Sir Edward was born in England and educated, like his elder brother, at Rugby, and at Oriel College, Oxford. He is a grandson of Joachim Goschen, the most famous European publisher of his day, who, making his headquarters at Leipzig, was the earliest friend and publisher of the German poet Schiller, all of whose works were issued to the world through Goschen, until he was finally weaned away by the publisher of Berlin.

Business as Usual?

One of the most popular slogans arising out of the European war, at least in the commercial and industrial sphere, is that of "Business as Usual." Just why the interests concerned have appropriated the phrase is not at all clear, neither is it reassuring, for may it not actually be the outcome of a desire to simply put a "face" on conditions that more or less demand it. In another sense, "Business as Usual," and in another sense it is otherwise, and our relative position to one or the other determines whether we are in earnest or bluffing.

In prosperous or boom times little effort, comparatively speaking, may be expended to keep the factory wheels and a myriad of employees taxed to the limit to serve the demand, and this condition may be to a large extent existent in quite normal times. It is not possible, however, that in spite of the tremendous upsetting events of the past two months, we still are disposed to "take" what is offered and let what needs "getting" go by; in other words, we are conducting our business as "usual" and there is no bluff about it.

Having said this much on behalf of what is undoubtedly a minority of commercial and industrial enterprises, it may be safely inferred that the majority are quite insouciant in the use of the "Business as Usual" slogan. They have in many cases withdrawn themselves completely from public eye. We act, however, otherwise, we may talk and write, as though the European Anti-Burglar Alliance was unequal to the task it has set itself. In grasping hold of the bee, we seem somehow to get the sting instead of the honey. In trying to pick the rose, our portion seems to be nothing but the dark cloud, although the silver lining is there.

Business, notwithstanding, is as "usual," by which is meant that there is business to be got, but the amount of our share will be entirely dependent on the enterprise and energy we put forth to get it. This is neither a normal time nor yet is it a boom time, to the latter of which unfortunately we have become too accustomed. It is an abnormal time and the very antithesis of a boom period. Conditions are just such now that our industries should be very active and busy. Publicly focussed on the path to their factory doors, but in how few instances is this being given effect to. It is insufficiently realized, and generally not at all, that the peculiar circumstances in which we find ourselves make it necessary for us to go after business more insistently and more strenuously than ever before. Our own and the needs of others still demand supply, and the wherewithal to produce and to purchase is just very difficult to come by. We must go about our business affairs in the proper spirit and in a determined manner.

Declarations otherwise, notwithstanding, we are not to be lulled by the stage, Canada's pessimism, born of a craven fear that the European war is a prelude to a general breakdown of the world, is not a sound attitude. The adoption of such an attitude is contrary to both right and reason. No subject of the British empire, if he be truly loyal, should have the slightest misgiving as to the ultimate outcome of this European struggle, for he who assumes the role of a coward is purchased more insistently and more strenuously than ever before. Our own and the needs of others still demand supply, and the wherewithal to produce and to purchase is just very difficult to come by. We must go about our business affairs in the proper spirit and in a determined manner.

Declarations otherwise, notwithstanding, we are not to be lulled by the stage, Canada's pessimism, born of a craven fear that the European war is a prelude to a general breakdown of the world, is not a sound attitude. The adoption of such an attitude is contrary to both right and reason. No subject of the British empire, if he be truly loyal, should have the slightest misgiving as to the ultimate outcome of this European struggle, for he who assumes the role of a coward is purchased more insistently and more strenuously than ever before. Our own and the needs of others still demand supply, and the wherewithal to produce and to purchase is just very difficult to come by. We must go about our business affairs in the proper spirit and in a determined manner.

Declarations otherwise, notwithstanding, we are not to be lulled by the stage, Canada's pessimism, born of a craven fear that the European war is a prelude to a general breakdown of the world, is not a sound attitude. The adoption of such an attitude is contrary to both right and reason. No subject of the British empire, if he be truly loyal, should have the slightest misgiving as to the ultimate outcome of this European struggle, for he who assumes the role of a coward is purchased more insistently and more strenuously than ever before. Our own and the needs of others still demand supply, and the wherewithal to produce and to purchase is just very difficult to come by. We must go about our business affairs in the proper spirit and in a determined manner.

Declarations otherwise, notwithstanding, we are not to be lulled by the stage, Canada's pessimism, born of a craven fear that the European war is a prelude to a general breakdown of the world, is not a sound attitude. The adoption of such an attitude is contrary to both right and reason. No subject of the British empire, if he be truly loyal, should have the slightest misgiving as to the ultimate outcome of this European struggle, for he who assumes the role of a coward is purchased more insistently and more strenuously than ever before. Our own and the needs of others still demand supply, and the wherewithal to produce and to purchase is just very difficult to come by. We must go about our business affairs in the proper spirit and in a determined manner.

Declarations otherwise, notwithstanding, we are not to be lulled by the stage, Canada's pessimism, born of a craven fear that the European war is a prelude to a general breakdown of the world, is not a sound attitude. The adoption of such an attitude is contrary to both right and reason. No subject of the British empire, if he be truly loyal, should have the slightest misgiving as to the ultimate outcome of this European struggle, for he who assumes the role of a coward is purchased more insistently and more strenuously than ever before. Our own and the needs of others still demand supply, and the wherewithal to produce and to purchase is just very difficult to come by. We must go about our business affairs in the proper spirit and in a determined manner.

Declarations otherwise, notwithstanding, we are not to be lulled by the stage, Canada's pessimism, born of a craven fear that the European war is a prelude to a general breakdown of the world, is not a sound attitude. The adoption of such an attitude is contrary to both right and reason. No subject of the British empire, if he be truly loyal, should have the slightest misgiving as to the ultimate outcome of this European struggle, for he who assumes the role of a coward is purchased more insistently and more strenuously than ever before. Our own and the needs of others still demand supply, and the wherewithal to produce and to purchase is just very difficult to come by. We must go about our business affairs in the proper spirit and in a determined manner.

Declarations otherwise, notwithstanding, we are not to be lulled by the stage, Canada's pessimism, born of a craven fear that the European war is a prelude to a general breakdown of the world, is not a sound attitude. The adoption of such an attitude is contrary to both right and reason. No subject of the British empire, if he be truly loyal, should have the slightest misgiving as to the ultimate outcome of this European struggle, for he who assumes the role of a coward is purchased more insistently and more strenuously than ever before. Our own and the needs of others still demand supply, and the wherewithal to produce and to purchase is just very difficult to come by. We must go about our business affairs in the proper spirit and in a determined manner.

Declarations otherwise, notwithstanding, we are not to be lulled by the stage, Canada's pessimism, born of a craven fear that the European war is a prelude to a general breakdown of the world, is not a sound attitude. The adoption of such an attitude is contrary to both right and reason. No subject of the British empire, if he be truly loyal, should have the slightest misgiving as to the ultimate outcome of this European struggle, for he who assumes the role of a coward is purchased more insistently and more strenuously than ever before. Our own and the needs of others still demand supply, and the wherewithal to produce and to purchase is just very difficult to come by. We must go about our business affairs in the proper spirit and in a determined manner.

Declarations otherwise, notwithstanding, we are not to be lulled by the stage, Canada's pessimism, born of a craven fear that the European war is a prelude to a general breakdown of the world, is not a sound attitude. The adoption of such an attitude is contrary to both right and reason. No subject of the British empire, if he be truly loyal, should have the slightest misgiving as to the ultimate outcome of this European struggle, for he who assumes the role of a coward is purchased more insistently and more strenuously than ever before. Our own and the needs of others still demand supply, and the wherewithal to produce and to purchase is just very difficult to come by. We must go about our business affairs in the proper spirit and in a determined manner.

Declarations otherwise, notwithstanding, we are not to be lulled by the stage, Canada's pessimism, born of a craven fear that the European war is a prelude to a general breakdown of the world, is not a sound attitude. The adoption of such an attitude is contrary to both right and reason. No subject of the British empire, if he be truly loyal, should have the slightest misgiving as to the ultimate outcome of this European struggle, for he who assumes the role of a coward is purchased more insistently and more strenuously than ever before. Our own and the needs of others still demand supply, and the wherewithal to produce and to purchase is just very difficult to come by. We must go about our business affairs in the proper spirit and in a determined manner.

Declarations otherwise, notwithstanding, we are not to be lulled by the stage, Canada's pessimism, born of a craven fear that the European war is a prelude to a general breakdown of the world, is not a sound attitude. The adoption of such an attitude is contrary to both right and reason. No subject of the British empire, if he be truly loyal, should have the slightest misgiving as to the ultimate outcome of this European struggle, for he who assumes the role of a coward is purchased more insistently and more strenuously than ever before. Our own and the needs of others still demand supply, and the wherewithal to produce and to purchase is just very difficult to come by. We must go about our business affairs in the proper spirit and in a determined manner.

Declarations otherwise, notwithstanding, we are not to be lulled by the stage, Canada's pessimism, born of a craven fear that the European war is a prelude to a general breakdown of the world, is not a sound attitude. The adoption of such an attitude is contrary to both right and reason. No subject of the British empire, if he be truly loyal, should have the slightest misgiving as to the ultimate outcome of this European struggle, for he who assumes the role of a coward is purchased more insistently and more strenuously than ever before. Our own and the needs of others still demand supply, and the wherewithal to produce and to purchase is just very difficult to come by. We must go about our business affairs in the proper spirit and in a determined manner.

Declarations otherwise, notwithstanding, we are not to be lulled by the stage, Canada's pessimism, born of a craven fear that the European war is a prelude to a general breakdown of the world, is not a sound attitude. The adoption of such an attitude is contrary to both right and reason. No subject of the British empire, if he be truly loyal, should have the slightest misgiving as to the ultimate outcome of this European struggle, for he who assumes the role of a coward is purchased more insistently and more strenuously than ever before. Our own and the needs of others still demand supply, and the wherewithal to produce and to purchase is just very difficult to come by. We must go about our business affairs in the proper spirit and in a determined manner.

Declarations otherwise, notwithstanding, we are not to be lulled by the stage, Canada's pessimism, born of a craven fear that the European war is a prelude to a general breakdown of the world, is not a sound attitude. The adoption of such an attitude is contrary to both right and reason. No subject of the British empire, if he be truly loyal, should have the slightest misgiving as to the ultimate outcome of this European struggle, for he who assumes the role of a coward is purchased more insistently and more strenuously than ever before. Our own and the needs of others still demand supply, and the wherewithal to produce and to purchase is just very difficult to come by. We must go about our business affairs in the proper spirit and in a determined manner.

Declarations otherwise, notwithstanding, we are not to be lulled by the stage, Canada's pessimism, born of a craven fear that the European war is a prelude to a general breakdown of the world, is not a sound attitude. The adoption of such an attitude is contrary to both right and reason. No subject of the British empire, if he be truly loyal, should have the slightest misgiving as to the ultimate outcome of this European struggle, for he who assumes the role of a coward is purchased more insistently and more strenuously than ever before. Our own and the needs of others still demand supply, and the wherewithal to produce and to purchase is just very difficult to come by. We must go about our business affairs in the proper spirit and in a determined manner.

Declarations otherwise, notwithstanding, we are not to be lulled by the stage, Canada's pessimism, born of a craven fear that the European war is a prelude to a general breakdown of the world, is not a sound attitude. The adoption of such an attitude is contrary to both right and reason. No

Prairie Lodge 44

Meets Every Monday Evening at 8
in the Larkin Hall

Visiting brethren cordially invited.

M. A. McLeod, Noble Grand
HAROLD DUNN, Recording Sec'y.

GOLDEN JUBILEE LODGE
No. 33

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS

Meet
Every Thursday, at 8 P.M., in
GLEICHEN CASTLE HALL

M. B. Holland, F. W. Jones,
C.C. K. of Hand &

T. H. Beach Auctioneer

Sales Conducted any place in the Province

For terms enquire at Gleichen Harness store. Office phone 3, residence phone
2. P.O. Box 138
GLEICHEN, ALTA.

DENTIST

C. R. MCINTYRE

L. D. S. D.
Graduate Royal College Dental Surgeons, Toronto.

Dentistry Practiced in all its Branches. Gas Administered

Office in Royal Bank Block
GLEICHEN

HARDWICK BROS

P.O. Box 138, GLEICHEN
Range, Snake Valley

Owners of all cattle branded:

left ribs left ribs right ribs
499 ribs 100 ribs 100 ribs

Horses branded: D right ribs

A REPRESENTATIVE OF THE TAUBE OPTICAL CO.
700 First St. W., Calgary

WILL VISIT GLEICHEN
EVERY TWO MONTHS
For Dates enquire at Yates Drug Store

M. Mecklenburg

Exclusive Eye Expert
With Gleichen Pharmacy, Monthly
Next visit Saturday, Jan 23rd.

Calgary office, King George Hotel
Edmonton office, 202 Jasper Ave.
Phone 5225

Whole Wheat Flour

Now extensively used in making Brown Bread, Cakes, etc as well as Breakfast food

—BUY NOW—

before the price advance $5.00 per 100 pounds, in quantities to suit purchaser Flour ground from your own wheat, 30 cents per 100 lbs

F.A. Williams, Gleichen
Alberta

THE GLEICHEN CALL

W. PARK EVANS, PROPRIETOR

Published Every Thursday In The Heart of a Wonderfully Rich Farming and Ranching District.

SUBSCRIPTION, $1.50 Per Year. Foreign Countries $2.00

Exchanges Must be added to Checks

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1915

HUMANITY ABOVE ALL

Hamilton Holt, editor and owner of The New York Independent, publishes the following in his journal, over his signature:

Bombs of fire are dropped from the clouds on unde-fended towns and cities. The United States is silent.

Deadly mines are strewn on the high seas. The United States is silent.

Buildings dedicated to religion, art, science and charity are raised to the ground. The United States is silent.

Enormous fines, far in excess of military necessities are levied on ravaged cities. The United States is silent.

Seven millions stand emaciated in Belgium. The United States is silent.

The Hague Conventions are thrown into the scrap basket. The United States is silent.

But—

The dollars of American trade are threatened. And the United States protests.

It is the duty of the United States to protect the commercial rights of its citizens. But it is also the duty of the United States to protect the civilization of the world.

Above all nations is humanity.

PROSPERITY THREATENED

Beck's Weekly, one of the sanest, brightest and most progressive publications in Canada, takes the view that Western Canada faces a period of prosperity such as the farmers have hitherto only dreamed of. Says Beck's, and its summing up of conditions may be regarded as worth our acceptance: "May wheat is now selling at $1.41 in the Chicago market, a price said to be the highest in 50 years. During the American Civil War it attained a figure of $3.00 a bushel, but that figure was merely nominal owing to the heavy depreciation of American currency at the time, the ordinary dollar of currency being worth only about 40 cents in gold. The Canadian crop of 1914 was only fair but that of the United States was a bumper one.
The effect of the war is such that the wheat crops of Europe are either partially ruined or are locked up in their own countries, while its consumption by the armies in the field is going on at an unprecedented rate. All this augurs an enormous increase of acreage and consequent prosperity for the Canadian Northwest. The prairie wheat growers are already feeling the benefits of the coming boom and scores of farmers who for years have carried on, under heavy debit items in respect of mortgages and machinery, are now anticipating some relief. The withdrawal of almost all the available population from agricultural work in Europe means that for at least a year to come there will be heavy decreases in the areas under wheat which will have to be supplied from the new world at well nigh our farmers' own price. If the figure at which a bumper crop of wheat sells is now nearly a dollar and a half a bushel, two dollar wheat is not outside the possibilities next autumn."

UNFAIR TO ABSENT SOLDIERS

A writer in the Calgary News-Telegram brings up this point in regard to the vote on prohibition in Alberta.
"The matter which I think should receive the consideration of all temperate-minded people is—are the conditions of business and finance in this province at the present time such as to justify the taking of the vote in July especially in view of the fact that there will be absent from the province, doing duty for the empire, thousands of our fellow citizens who have the legitimate right to express their opinions on this question; and, in view of their absence, will it not make the verdict, whether for or against prohibition, practically of no effect. I believe that neither side of this question will be content with the verdict if against them in the absence of Alberta's soldier citizens."

The New Butter Law Requires
Printed Wrappers
The Call Will Print them
at the Lowest Prices

PALM PARLORS

is open

In new Padley Block
opposite Palace Hotel

where a full assortment of

CANDIES, NUTS,

etc., will be carried, and where will be served:

Coffee, Tea, Beef Tea,

—Bullion of all Kinds—

Ice Cream at all seasons

Buy an Irrigated Farm From The CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY BECAUSE:

Irrigation makes the farmer independent of rainfall, and insures good crops, not occasionally, but every year.

Irrigation makes possible the successful culture of alfalfa, the king of fodder, which insures best returns in dairying, and mixed farming.

Irrigation means intensive farming and close settlement, with all the advantages of a densely populated agricultural community.

Irrigation in the Canadian Pacific Railway Irrigation Block is no longer an experiment, the year 1914 having absolutely demonstrated its success wherever intelligently applied.

You can buy irrigated land from the Canadian Pacific Railway at prices ranging from $35 to $75 per acre, with twenty years to pay and the privilege of a loan of $2,000.00 for improvements (5% interest; no principal payment) at end of first or second year and no water rental for first year. Assurances is also given in supplying stock in approved instances.

This is the most liberal offer of irrigated farm land on record. Get full particulars from

A. D. CAMERON, Gen. Supt. of Lands,
Dept. of Natural Resources, Canadian Pacific Railway,
CALGARY, ALBERTA

PALACE HOTEL

Now Open Under New Management

Thoroughly Renovated
The new managers will endeavor to give the travelling public first-class accommodation

You know as well as we, but you put off taking out a policy. Why?
You'll be provoked at yourself the day after the fire that sweeps as-way your savings if they are not insured. What earthly excuse have you for not seeing us to-day? We await your answer.

Thomas Henderson
Successor to McKie and Henderson
REAL ESTATE
Fire, Life and Accident Insurance

LUMBER

We Carry a Complete Stock of LUMBER, LATH, SHINGLES and BUILDING MATERIAL.

Revelstoke Sawmill Co. Ltd.
C. L. FARROW, Local Manager

Now is the Time

To give your house that coat of paint that you have put off so long. Have just received a fresh shipment of Stephens famous paints.

Rowe, Rowe & Rowe

Wall Papers, Paints and Oils
Phone 70 GLEICHEN P.O. Box 71

50th Battalion, C.E.F., Calgary, Jan. 28th, 1915—Major Perry, Recruiting Officer of the 50th Battalion, C.E.F., will be in Gleich-en for the purpose of attesting recruits for the 50th Battalion on Monday, February 8th, from 5 to 10 p.m. This plan has been adopted in order to give those living in the towns an opportunity to serve their country in the present crisis. Those eligible for enlistment are males between the ages of 18 and 45 years. The minimum chest measure is 33 1-2 inches and the minimum height 5 feet 3 inches. Men under the age of 21 years and only sons of parents who are wholly dependent on them for support must obtain in writing the consent of their parents and married men must have the written consent of their wives in addition to the foregoing conditions. All men who enlist must be sound mentally and physically in every detail.

After receiving the message the OALL had it conspicuously displayed on the Gleichen Hotel blackboard, and made it known generally. We already are informed that a number of local men will take advantage of this opportunity.

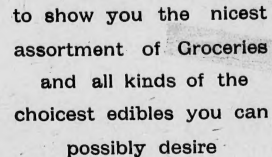

Prepared to pay CASH for
FAT CATTLE
and
FAT HOGS
at any point in Alberta.

W. R. Payne, Gleichen, Alta.
Phones, Residence R401; Ranch R503
or M1388, Grain Exchange, Calgary, Alta.

Resolved, that we place on record our pleasure at the patriotic sta-taken by our honored leader, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in this emp-

T. H. Beach left hurriedly week ago for his home in Ontario having received word that his brother was seriously ill. Latest reports received are that his brother's is slightly improving.

new sight is probably the largest one as the W. Stuart & Co's lumber yard. The former office has been removed to the rear as well as a portion of the sheds and a general transformation of that corner has been made, including a platform forty feet to be built in front of the building facing on Gleichen Street. Mr. Bogette intends using these premises for his office and important warehouse house and has taken over the McCormack building. The agencies in connection with the various other companies that he represents. The moving of the Institute has occupied somewhat but was successfully accomplished by Messrs. House & Jones.

On this car only. Regular price is $6.60 per ton
BROWN'S TRANSFER
We move anything with two ends

The Hicks Trading Co.
Mens' Outfitters

W. C. REAZIN, The Oil Man. CLUNY